

Code of Conduct and Business Ethics

How we treat each other, our customers, and the markets we serve

Policy Owner	Legal & People Operations
Policy Number	ZP-LEG-001
Effective Date	January 1, 2026
Last Reviewed	February 28, 2026
Applies To	Every Zaya employee, contractor, board member, and partner acting on Zaya's behalf

1. A Letter from the CEO

When we founded Zaya, we set out to build a company we would be proud to work at — one that prized integrity over short-term wins, and trust over transactional gain. This Code of Conduct is the practical expression of that ambition. It is not a list of legalese to be tolerated; it is the operating system of how we work together. Every Zayan, from the newest intern to the executive team, is expected to read it, understand it, and act on it. When in doubt, do the harder right thing over the easier wrong thing — and ask for help.

— Priya Madhavan, CEO

2. Our Core Values in Practice

- Customer obsession. We earn customer trust every day; we never compromise it for revenue.
- Radical candor. We say what we think — kindly, directly, and with the goal of improving the work.
- Operate with integrity. The right thing is the right thing whether or not anyone is watching.
- Inclusion is non-negotiable. Different perspectives make Zaya stronger; bias and exclusion make us weaker.
- Bias to action. When in doubt, take the smallest reversible step forward and learn.

3. Respect in the Workplace

Zaya will not tolerate harassment, discrimination, or retaliation of any kind. This includes — but is not limited to — unwelcome conduct based on race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, national origin, age, disability, veteran status, or any other characteristic protected by applicable law. Every employee has the right to a workplace free of intimidation, bullying, and humiliation, and every manager has the responsibility to create that environment actively.

Concerns can be raised with any manager, with People Operations directly at peopleops@zaya.com, or anonymously through the third-party Speak-Up Line at zaya.ethicspoint.com. Retaliation against anyone who raises a concern in good faith is itself a violation of this Code and will be treated as such.

4. Conflicts of Interest

A conflict of interest exists whenever an employee's personal interests interfere — or could appear to interfere — with the interests of Zaya. Common examples include outside employment with a competitor, financial investments in vendors or partners that the employee has influence over, personal relationships with subordinates, and family members working in procurement-sensitive roles at Zaya customers.

Employees must disclose actual, potential, and perceived conflicts annually through the Conflicts Disclosure Portal and again whenever circumstances change. Disclosure is never a finding of wrongdoing — it is the mechanism by which Zaya can manage the situation transparently.

5. Anti-Bribery and Anti-Corruption

Zaya complies fully with the U.S. Foreign Corrupt Practices Act, the U.K. Bribery Act, and equivalent anti-corruption laws in every market where we operate. No Zayan may offer, give, solicit, or accept any bribe, kickback, or improper payment — whether in cash, gifts, services, or favors — to influence a business decision. Facilitating payments to government officials are prohibited even where local custom permits them.

- Gifts and hospitality to non-government counterparties must be modest, infrequent, and never given to influence a pending decision. The single-occasion limit is $150 USD.
- Gifts to government officials of any kind, including meals, swag, and conference admission, require pre-approval from the Legal team.
- Charitable donations and sponsorships routed through customer-affiliated organizations require Compliance review.

6. Confidential Information and Data Protection

Zaya handles substantial volumes of customer, partner, and employee data. Every Zayan is required to complete annual security and privacy training, follow least-privilege access principles, and report suspected incidents to security@zaya.com within 24 hours of discovery. Confidential information must never be shared with unauthorized parties — including spouses, family members, friends, or external recruiters — and remains confidential indefinitely after employment ends.

7. Fair Competition and Insider Information

We compete to win, but we win fairly. Zaya does not engage in price-fixing, market allocation, bid rigging, or other anti-competitive behavior. Employees must never solicit or use confidential information about competitors obtained through improper means, including former employees of a competitor bringing trade secrets with them. Because Zaya intends to pursue a public listing, employees and contractors with access to material non-public information are subject to a quarterly trading window and an insider-trading pre-clearance process; details are maintained by the General Counsel's office.

8. Use of Company Resources

Zaya provides each employee with the tools, software, and physical resources needed to do their best work. Limited personal use of company equipment is acceptable, but the resources may not be used for personal commercial purposes, partisan political activity, or any unlawful or harassing conduct. All communications on Zaya systems may be reviewed by Zaya consistent with applicable law.

9. Speaking Up and Non-Retaliation

If you see something that feels wrong, say something. You may raise concerns through your manager, your skip-level, People Operations, the Legal team, or the anonymous Speak-Up Line. Zaya investigates every concern raised in good faith, takes appropriate corrective action, and protects the identity of reporters wherever possible. Retaliation in any form — overt or subtle, immediate or delayed — is treated as a serious violation of this Code.

10. Acknowledgment and Annual Recertification

Every Zayan acknowledges this Code at hire and recertifies annually through the Learning Hub. Failure to acknowledge by the deadline will result in a hold on variable compensation until completion. Questions about this Code — or about how it applies to a specific situation — should be directed to ethics@zaya.com.

This document supersedes ZP-LEG-001 v5.0 (April 2024). It is reviewed at minimum annually by the Audit and Risk Committee of the Zaya Board of Directors.
